Disastrous Fire at Chicago.

At Chicago, Wednesday afternoon, the Iroquois theatre was destroyed by fire, while the play of "Blue Beard," was being enacted. It proved a funeral pyre for nearly a thousand people. Scorching tongues of flames suddenly sprang from the stage to the theatre, driving the audience panic stricken before the fiery blast—men and women and children fought like demons to gain exits. Huge piles of corpses twelve feet in depth was the ghastly spectacle which greeted rescuing firemen. Over seven hundred are dead.

NEEDED BADLY.—What is needed badly at the Paris Cemetery is a chapel to hold funeral services in during the severe winter weather. It would also be a good thing to have a tent that could be pitched near the graves to protect the people from all kinds of weather during a burial. Other cities have these conveniences and why not Paris?

"You never kin tell which way any pleasure is a-comin'. Who ever would 'a' thought, when we aimed at the cemetery, that we'd land up at a first-class fire?"—Mrs. Wiggs.

MRS. SHIPP'S ENTERTAINMENT.—The Cincinnati Times says: "Mrs. H. C. Shipp's entertainment for the children Wednesday evening proved a complete success and was attended by a large number of the children and their friends. In all, 134 children were given a sack of eatables and some wearing apparel, and on Christmas morning 34 half-bushel baskets filled with groceries, fruits, etc., were delivered to the deserving poor. In addition, 100 bushels of coal is held in reserve to be distributed during severe weather."

Mr. Hinton Thanks His Patrons.

It affords me the very greatest pleasure to announce that although through past years my holiday sales have been exceptionally good, this year's Christmas trade was the very best in my experience of 43 years. I wish to extend to one and all of my friends and patrons my sincerest thanks for the part they have taken in making this statement possible.

My confidence in the people of this community was, such as to lead me to put in a larger stock of better goods for Christmas than ever before. I have not been disappointed in the results. It is a source of great gratification to have succeeded to such an extent in pleasing my patrons, as has been indicated by their liberal purchases. My appreciation of the patronage shall be shown by renewed efforts to place before the public the best goods to be had in any market at prices that shall meet all competition.

With renewed thanks for all favors and the earnest wish that all may have a happy and prosperous New Year, I am, sincerely,

J. T. HINTON.
